unnoticed, and take our stand to one side near a line of official sedan chairs. The scene in the court is varied and almost brilliant. Several hundred people are there—officials, servants, soldiers, and sedan chair bearers. The officials are seated for the most part in camp chairs, chatting. They are richly dressed in brown satin and furs. The gurgling of the water pipe is incessant. Servants are running hither and thither with lighted paper for the pipes, cups of hot tea, hat boxes or bundles containing dress boots. Large lanterns made of silk gauze stretched over a light bamboo frame, circular and two feet in diameter, are hanging from tripods placed about the court. On the gauze is printed the name and rank of the owner in broad gilt characters. As we stand looking on, there is a cry from the gate: "The Provincial Examiner arrives." At once pipes are put down and the lower officials and expectants rise and form double ranks diagonally across the court from gate to verandah; behind them stand their servants, elevating above their heads the lanterns, or rather the great luminous globes of gauze, whose soft light falling on the red crowned hats of the officials, each with its glittering button, and on the brown satin of their tunics, and lighting up the double line of sober pallid faces thus thrown into high relief from out the surrounding darkness, all goes to make up a striking picture.

Meanwhile the great man appears, walking deliberately between the ranks, with head slightly inclined in acknowledgement of the honour paid him, and disappears into the second court, followed closely by a servant stepping lightly along bearing sweetmeats, teapot, and wash basin.

Smaller officials were constantly arriving, not being specially announced. The crowd grew more and more dense, until, as dawn approached, we were waiting only for the Governor, the Judge, Treasurer, Salt Commissioners, Taotai and Chi-fu having successively arrived. At 6.20 a.m., about daybreak, the Governor appeared, and passed slowly along the ranks. He is a large man, fully six feet in height, and corpulent. His face has a haughty but crevassed expression—his mouth hangs partially open, his eyes are half closed, and his almost pendant cheeks shake with every step. He goes directly to his dressing room, where he puts on other boots and changes his hat for one that is worn in the presence of the Emperor. We are hurried by an acquaintance through the second court into a third, where the whole front of the building opposite has been taken out, and the walls hung with white silk. Numerous candles are burning. In the centre is an altar on which is a small incense burner which sends up a thin thread of fragrant white smoke. Just behind is an imperial yellow silk umbrella. Underneath it is placed the Tablet. The whole effect is somewhat that of looking on the illuminated stage of a theatre. In the court, before the tablet and a little to the right, are seven carpets spread for the use of the seven higher officials of the city, who alone make the prostrations. They emerge from their dressing rooms, and stand motionless, each one in front of his carpet, and facing the altar. The master of rites from some dark corner, in a high thin voice, calls out rhythmically "Kwei!" "Kai!" "Kai!" and a musical accompaniment of a bundle of tuned reeds. The note is rather sweet, unsteady but somewhat querulous. At this signal the officials sink to their knees. "K'ou shan" "Prostrate yourselves" is again called out, and the officials bend forward until their foreheads touch the pavement; "A-g-a-n" and the prostration is slowly repeated; "A-g-a-n" we hear chanting to the quavering pipe notes, and the officials sink once more to the ground. Then we hear called on "Shing!" "A-i-a-e" and the group arises. This is repeated twice, and as everything is done with great deliberation, the entire ceremony consumed perhaps five minutes. During this time the numerous other officials and expectants were ranged at one side, standing silent and motionless. A breathless stillness brooded over the crowd of followers in the rear. They saw themselves in the presence of the Son of Heaven, the rightful ruler of the myriad kingdoms. Surely they never approached nearer to reverence than in the days of that winter's morning, when nothing was to be heard but the chanting of the directions and the notes of the pipe. But the ceremony ended, the officials turn abruptly from their rugs, and pass swiftly to the dressing rooms. There is a rush for chairs and carts. The customary confusion of a Chinese crowd rears itself. The chair bearers all swear at each other as usual, and insults real or imagined are revolved incessantly. Servants dash about with their masters' belongings, and the object of each individual seems to be to get away in the fewest possible number of seconds. We make our way with difficulty through the crush, and go home somewhat fagged, and with the sincere conviction that it is a very cold morning.—"Economy" in Chinese Times.

NINGPO.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

After a long spell of beautiful sunshine and real spring weather, rain set in yesterday, and it still continues to the great delight of the farmers, for the ground was dry and hard, rendering agricultural labour difficult.

The German gunboat Itzehoe arrived from Foochow on the 30th ult., and will remain here till the 6th, when she will leave for Wusung to meet the fleet returning from Nanking. As usual, this time of the year, changes are taking place in the Customs, and we will soon lose Messrs. Hoogh and Lubus, the former transferred to Peking, and the latter to Chemoo. Korea. In their places Messrs. T. Acheson and Toliday will come here. I also notice that the members of the Ningpo Rowing Club are actively practising every day, and it is whispered that we are about to have a regatta soon.—Mercury.

HANGCHOW.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

March 31st.

The month of March leaves us with pleasant memories of the succession of bright rainy days which continued with hardly a break from first to last. In fact the weather is too pleasant by far for the agricultural interests. There is great need of rain throughout the country. The water in the canals is quite low and this has had the effect of checking the number of pilgrims who come to worship in the temples around the city at this season every year. The lowness of the water prevents the larger boats from reaching the place where they generally anchor, and so many of them prefer not to perform the pilgrimage this year.

The work of rebuilding the Drum Tower has begun in earnest. The cause of the burning of the tower is now stated to be the fault of a certain contractor for government jobs in the city, and the work of rebuilding it has been laid on him as a punishment for his fault. The government furnishes him with $70,000, a sum insufficient for the expense, and he will have to find the balance somewhere else. It is reported that the governor has decided that the burning of the Drum Tower was due to the fact that a certain temple in proximity to it was rebuilt a few months ago, and in construction was so changed as to face the south rather than the east as it had always done before, and as is the custom with all respectable temples. It is an article of the orthodox faith that a temple facing south draws fire. The rebuilding of the aforesaid temple was under the supervision of the contractor mentioned above, and he changed its relations to the elements so removed to another post; another will take his place in about a month from this.

In addition to this open count against him there is said to be another open secret that has great weight with the officials against him. They have learned that he made a good sum of money from the government a few years ago, by putting up an inferior wall around the imperial audience hall in the city, and they take this occasion to recover some of that loss.—N. C. Daily News.

TIENTSIN.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

April 1st.

Our present Taotai is promoted and goes to Peking for an audience; and our Magistrate is removed to another post; another will take his place in about a month from this.

At Peking-foo a literary examination was held lately. One of the pupils of the Jesuit Mission of Shin-hsien graduated and received the much sought after degree of provincial B.D., which entitles him to compete at the metropolitan examination. His Christianity did not stand in his way apparently, and the Mission is highly pleased at their pupil's success. His name is Kot Kum Ngok.

Mrs. Ex. Yu-he, the Military Governor of Shingking, Manchuria, has confirmed the permission for mining that was applied for in November last, by a British firm and issued by the Board of Admiralty. Official notices have been issued. The mining district is stated to be known as Lung Hwa Hsien, near Yalu River, on the borders of Shingking and Korea. The documents granting the permission go to Shanghai by the Heaven. This is another proof that, when they mean business at Peking, they do not take long for them to carry it through, even though Governor-Generals and Governors are not much in favour of the scheme. They have to do as they are requested. This is a step in the right direction if they really mean to develop the mineral resources of China. Li Hung-chang is not willing to use foreigners in this scheme, but he will eventually have to do so.

I learn from Peking that the Board of Admiralty has again taken up the question of the big loan, and that Prince Ching, the President of the Board, is communicating on this subject with Li Hung-chang. If so, it means that the big bank or the German Bank will get this loan. If the latter gets it, then the railway will fall into Herr Krupp's hands. Baron von Seckendorff's visit to Peking, to see Mr. von Brandt, is, it is said, in connection with this, and not as the Chinese Times had it, that he was on a journey to Chi-nan-foo.—Mercury.

How to gain Flesh and Strength.—Take after each meal about a tablespoonful of Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites. It is almost as palatable as milk and easily digested. The rapidity with which delicate children and sickly people suffering from weakness and wasting disease improve and thrive upon this diet is truly marvellous. As a remedy for Consumption and Throat Affections and Bronchitis is unequalled by any other preparation in the world. Any Chemist can supply it.—A. S. Watson & Co. THE AUSTIN ARMS HOTEL AND BUILDING CO., LIMITED.

REPORT OF THE DIRECTORS For the year ending the 31st December, 1890, for presentation to the shareholders at the ORDINARY GENERAL MEETING OF THE COMPANY, to be held on THURSDAY Next, at 3 o'clock.

Gentlemen,—Your directors beg to lay before you a statement of accounts showing the position of the Company on the 31st December, 1890.

The amount at debit of profit and loss at that date, namely $5,787.43, includes directors' fees for 1890, and has been carried forward to a new account.

The Hotel is nearly completed, and your directors confidently look forward to its being ready for occupation next month. Judging from the interest the public take in the progress of the building and from the applications they have already received for rooms, they have no doubt it will be a popular summer resort for the residents here and at the coast ports. During the cold season they think it will prove sufficiently attractive to secure a fair share of the support of travellers to the Far East, who are visiting this port in increasing numbers year by year, and for whom the hitherto existing Hotel accommodation has proved insufficient.

The plants, trees and shrubs suitable for the hill district, which Mr. Ford, the Superintendent of the Botanic Gardens, kindly undertook to propagate for us, are now being planted and the grounds laid out.

Mr. J. Orange and Mr. H. Humphreys have been appointed directors in place of Messrs. H. Heyn and W. G. Brodie resigned, and these appointments require your confirmation.

In accordance with article 13, paragraph 4, of the articles of association, Mr. J. D. Humphreys, managing director, and Mr. H. Humphreys, retire from the Board, but being eligible offer themselves for re-election.

The Company's accounts for the period under review have been audited by Messrs. A. W. Mainland and F. Henderson.

Mr. F. Henderson offers himself for re-election, but as Mr. A. W. Mainland is leaving the Colony he does not wish to be re-elected.

QUININUM WINE OF LABARRAQUE

unique preparation of this kind,
approved by the Academy of Medicine of Paris, is the condensation of all the active principles of the Cinchona Bark. A few grammes of the Quinum produce the same effect as several kilos of Cinchona.

(Honour, Professor

powerful tonic. I have found it in your Quinum which I consider as the restorative par excellence of weakened constitutions.

Dr. CABANET.

The Quinum Wine of Labarraque is the most useful complement of Quinine in the treat-
